THE WAR AS SEEN IN GLASGOW.

Erchie on the War. We apologise to those of our readers who are not able to understand the dialect of the following extract from the Glasgow

Econing News :-There was a reference to the war from the pulpit of St. Kentigern's Church yesterday, and Erchie was somewhat annoyed to a conflict of whose magnitude he has but a hazy idea.

'Fancy puttin' up a prayer aboot a bit war like thon!' he said to me afterwards. The minister hadna much to due to be bothered wi' them. It's just yin o' thac 698 foreign wars abroad in yin o' that places ye gang to in a steamer. There's nae Black Watch nor Gordon Hielanders workin at it, only a wheen o' folk that wear comic class and eat ony kind o' trash. I wadnagie them ony encouragement.

But war is always a dreadful thing, Erchie,' I ventured to say; 'and our own war was abroad, too; that did not make it any the less dreadful,'

'Maybe it was,' said he, 'but it was in country whaur the places ha'e Christian names. I canna be bothered wi'thae fancy names they gie the places whaur this war's takin' place ; it gies me a sair heid to read them in the papers. And I ken fine they're a' wrang spelled onywye. It's maybe a richt enough war, but there's nae money in't for Mrs Maclure in oor close, 719 her that has a man in the Preserves. When he was ca'd oot to the front at the Transvaul, she was put on the War Fund, and did sae weel aff it that she started a green-grocery that's decin' fine. She got a wee lend o' a lot o' weans frae the neciboure and got twa shillin's a week free the Fund MEETING of Members of the above for each o' them, no mentionin' cairtcan see that's gaun to mak' money aff this war is Duffy; he's put a hawbee on the bag o' coals since he read somewhere that the Rooshians canna get fochin' right for the ice. "That 'll put up the demand for coal," says Duffy, the same as if they were gaun to melt the ice wi' fires, and whips oot his lump o'chalk." 'Ah! Erchie,' I said, 'it means much more than a ha'penny on the bag o' coals to Russia and Japan. War is war, foreign or at home."

'I daursay it is,' he admitted. 'They're no' gettin' awfu' guid weather for this yin. onywye,' THE COMBATANTS --- AN EXPOSITION.

'Whit bates me about it,' he went on 'is. the wye the bonny wee Japs is daein' the trick. I'm acquent wi' the Japs; it's them that mak's the stuff for bleck nin' grates, and ha'e the monopoly of the draught. screen tred. They ha'e to be dacin' something for a livin', puir sowls, them bein' sue far awa' frae onyplace. I seen them at the Exhibection-gey poely-wally to look at, but as game as onything, and their prices for paper fans fair reediculous. It was them had you wee trees hunners o' years suld and no' the size of a savoy cabbage. A droll folk, but may be God made them. We didna make a great fraca about the Japanese when they had to keep their een open for fear some o' us Chairman, while Mr Smith and Mr Hewert | smert Gleska folk didna pinch ony o' their wee wally vawzes no' for haudin' onything. I mind o' the chaps fine; I was a waiter at the Grosvenor for a month at a time, and I could see them gaun about in their carpet slippers, their con up near their cars, and their class ready-made. The Rooshians were there too; ye mind the wee toon they KING EDWARD built in their spare time when they werenn sherpin' their hatchets. I learnt a lot about the Rooshians there, 'ye could see they were a thochtfu' people from the wye they contemplated ony parteecular job they were gain to start. They had on top-boots mae maitter what kind of weather it was, elack breeks, and a language ye couldna mak' ony sense o'. We were awfa friendly wi' the Rooshians at that time, even Duffy gave up the beer and took to drinkin' Rooshian tea. A great people, awfu' needin' shavin.' It was fine to watch them; it let ye see the curiosities o' nature. Electric Passenger Elevator to each Floor. But they were the maist puttingaffinest folk ever I set een on. That's whit spiles

> AS IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN. 'It's a peety this war between the Japanese and the Rooshians didna start when they were not at the Groveries; it wad ha'e been a fine pant and faur mair popular than the water-shoot. We could ha'e locked them up in the grounds when they got railly dangerous and watched them wi'spyglesses from Park Circus. The papers wad be railly worth readin for their war news then-Rooshian goudola torpedoed near the water-shoot, and sinks in four feet water. Admiral Kaskowhusky wides ashore in the glare of the search-light free Gilmorchill, and gots his feet a wet." Bungalow attacked by the Rooshians great slaughter, no a hale tumbler left in the place, and threatened intervention o', the Cranstonbill Polis Japs massing on Miss Cranston's tea. rooms; great capture of lemons, and

them at this war; ye ha'e to be gey gleg

when ye gang oot wi' a gun.

exasperation o' the Rooshians, wha canna get their tea. Price o' the London burn goes up to threepence. Telegram frae the Rooshian Emperor-Hing on as lang's ye can till I spit on my hands and declare war; then God defend the right! 1. Six Japanese wi five fans, twa draughtbattery o' paper lan-Kelvin on Setterday a strong posection in the lasgar-beer bar. Rooshians reported in strong force in the neighbourhood o' the Art Gallery. Letter frae Sir John Shearer tellin' them they better mind whit they're aboot, and no spile onything, 'Fall o' the King's statue under the dome; blown up by dynamite by the Japanese. Great rejoicings.' 'Masterly move by the Japs; they retire on the Sunlight Soap Model Cottage, and repel Rooshian attack wi' cakes o' soap. Rooshians protest that the use of soap is contrary to the Berlin Convention bein' mair deadly than dum-dum bullets."

*That wad be a right sort o' war; ye could gang out and see't goin' on every nicht efter ye got yer tea, and if things got dull they could ha'e Sousa's band up at the flagstaff, forenent Park Circus playin' 'The Mikado' and 'San Toy.

THE CAMPAIGN IN BRIEF. * This is the maist disappointin' war ever I read o'. Ye'll buy the paper at night, thinkin' it's gaun to be awfu' guid readin' because it says in the bill that three regiments o' Rooshian sappers went through the ico and were drooned, and ye find that though it's in the paper, the paper itsel' says it's maybe no true. A bawr's a bawr, but that's no fair horney. Then, again, ye see that hunders o' Japanese ha'e been sunk in a transport ship: ye buy the paper as fast's ye can, and ye find their names is no given. Whaur's the fun o' that? For a week or twa efter the war started the telegraph wires were kept redhot wi' telegrams about the sinkin' o' Rooshinn ships. The Japa sunk them daily or oorly as required; they wad jist daunder up where a Rosshian man-o'-war was lyin' and pit a torpedo on't as if it was a mustard plaister, and stand back smokin' their eigarettes and coolin' themsel's wi' their fans till the poother gaed aff. It generally happened that the Rooshian Admir de and their crows were awa' ashore in the punt to a dance, and when they came back their ships werns there, so there was maching for them but to tak' ludgings in the toon. * Cowards!' says they, 'to hit us behind oor backs, and us no lookin'. Hoo wad they like it themsel's?' But the Japs ) jist went on fanning themsel's. Then the Rooshians made whit's ca'd a straggetic move, took some o' their ships out o' dock, and ran as nate's onything into their i ain submarine mines. There was an awfu' bang. 'Tut! tut!' says Admiral Alexander (the chap that dism ken the wye to spell bis ain name.) 'Tuta!' says he, startin' oot to sweem for the shore without ha'ein' time to tak' his spurs aff. Tuts! wha left oot that submarines this mornin'. The Japs went on famuin' themsel's, and agreed that if the war was cairried on this way they wad save a lot o' money. That's the droll thing about it ; naithing ever happens to the Japs. They jist gang perusin' roond wi's fan in was hand and a torpede in the The Rooshian Emperor was awfu' approved at it. 'Hold on!' he wires to 'I'm jist gaun awa' to declare war | as soon's I can find my bunnet.' 'We're findin' the holes in the Hoshkikoff and Ulbakaza, Admiral Alexander wires back whenever he got himsel' dried. 'They're a 'ahove high-water mark, and we're fillin ' them up wi' potty. The forces under my command are quite calm.' They micht weel be calm, puir craturs! for the maist o' them were in ablow the watter, that awfu' deid mae potty could care them.

· There havens been nas reports o' a' Rooshian disaster for three days; it's on account o' the snow fallin', yin o' the papers says. I suppose the Rooshians forgot to bring their galoshes to the front wi' them, and the Japanese divna want to wet their carpet slippers. This delay is Providential; it'll gie the American excursion steamers for the seat o' war time to be ! there for the next naval battle. Oh. aye! they're runin' trips frae New Nork - 'Sixty days at the Seat o' War for Six Hundred Dollars, Every passenger guaranteed a front seat when the fightin' starts. Night engagements brilliant,y illuminated by the electric searchlight. Band on board, and fi st-class cocktail bar." I hear the German Emperor's thinkin' o' takin' a run oot on his yacht; if the weather's ower stormy he'll jist stay at hame and send the Roo. shians a telegram.

IMPERIAL RIFLE MATCH.

A World's Record.

The eighth of the series of Imperial rifle matches, inaugurated by the Rupanyup-Rifle Club, took place in various parts of the British Empire during September and October last year, and the results have now been received by the organizing secretary (Lieutenant W. A. Whitehead). Those show that, although the number of comesting teams is not quite so numerous as in previous years, the quality of the shooting still maintains-or rather excels that of former years, a world's record having been put up by the winning team, the Queen's Own Rifle Volunteer Brigade, The Royal Scots (Queon's Edinburghs) shooting at Edinburg to the huge total of 1002, being add to of 100.2 for theten men comprising the the the excellence of this shooting can be the temperating it

As will be seen by the scores published below, the whole team shot consistently, and could they have counted their sighting shots the total would have been increased by 5, as in some instances the sighter was a bull's eve. while in their last shot they dropped point. Surgt. Ommundson's score of 104, out of a possible 105, was a brilliant shoot, he only dropping a point in his fifth shot at 200 yards, all his others at the three ranges finding the bull's eye, He was closely followed by Lance-Corporal F. P. Robinson Liverpool Rifle Club, which 103; whilst Staff-Sergeant T. H. Hayhurst, 13th Hamilton Infantry, Canada, and Pte Robertson, of the winning team, each compil ed 102. The conditions of the match were 7 shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards, one sighter not to count. As will be seen by shot, nearly every part of the British Empire was represented, whilst several letters the prisoners were charged with setting were received from various other places.

Another Version of the Fight at Tuna.

Another account of the light at Tuna, telegraphed from Calcutta on April 1st The Mission, with the Flying Column, moved out from Tuna at eight o'clock, Snow had fallen during the night, and all the plain and surrounding mountains were covered with a dazzling mantle. After half-an-hour's march, a message came in I from the Tibetan Camp asking the column to withdraw. They were then near the hot springs. Depon, the Lhassa General, himself came out with a quaint retinue, and had an interview with Colonel Younghusband. He asked the Mission to retire to Zatung, whence negotiations could take

Colonel Younghusband replied that retirement was now inpossible. We had been abgotiating with Tibet for fifteen years. Colonel Younghusband himself had spent eight fruitless months in attempting to meet responsible persons from Lhassa. and the Mission was now going to Gyantse; but we had no wish to fight. Depon would. therefore, be acting for the best if he ordered his soldiers now blocking our path to retire. Depon was visbily disconcerted at the reply. He said neither did he wish to fight, and he would order his soldiers not to fire on us; but if we went on there might be trouble. Depon then rode off with Colonel Younghusband next asked General Macdonald to move the Tibetan soldiers, who were lining the sangars and the blockhouse in the fort, out of the way, possible, without firing. Our troops then deployed, altogether out flanking the Tibetan position, which was partly on bare ridge overhanging the read and partly on the road across which they had built a wall. The Tibetans on the top of the ridgeretired to the cover of the wall below, but the remainder held their ground till the two forces were actually face to face on opposite sides of the wall.

In the meanwhile, the right and left flanks of our deployment had closed round the wall, with the result that the Tibetans, numbering about 1,50%, were within a circle of Indian troops. The whole affair had been so quietly and effectively managed that it might be compared to the revolution. hording of shoop. Many must have killed each other in their mad excitement. 909 the meanwhile, the Sikhs opened fire the surging mob, and the officers emptied their revolvers. THE CRUISE OF THE 'HAIMUN.'

Chased by a Russian Cruiser. In view of the telegraphed news from London that the Russians intend to deal summarily with newspaper correspondents Tuna brought in a large number of using wireless telegraphy, the following wounded, who were grateful for the news from Weihaiwei has a special interest

Weinalwel, April 7. I telegraphed to you the fact of the blow, and express curiosity at Russia's Haimun's temporary arrest on the high seas, and now forward some details of interest. The incident furnishes further evidence of the renewed activity of the Russian fleet and we may expect that the Japanese will endeavour to intercept their enemy's warships, if they persist in venture some excursions so far from the protecting guns of their naval stronghold. " Yesterday, while cruising in the Gulf, the officers of the Haimun noticed smoke on the horizon, and steamed in that direction, expecting to see a Japanese cruiser. To their great astonishment they encountered instead the Russian four:funnelled armoured cruiser Bayan. The socepted. Press-boat made every effort to escape, but in vain. The Bayan made no signals to stop the Haimun, but at several miles range, fired a shell which fell sufficiently near to cause those in charge of the latter to see the futility of further attempts at escaping. The Japanese, it seems, adopt a more courteous method in arresting ships by signalling their orders. Before the Bayan reached her quarry the Times correspondents had sent a Message by Wireless Telegraphy to the station here the 26th April, 1904, commencing at informing their representative of their predicament, and notifying him of possible capture and detention at Port Arthur. That a message had been dispatched did not escape the Russian cruiser's attention. Two officers boarded the Haimun and made enquiries after contraband of war. A thorough search revealed nothing which could be used as an excuse for detaining the ship.

"Were there Japanese on board? Yes, they had an interpreter. But he had found asfe refuge in a bath-room, and in the hunt for him, so unlikely a hiding place was overlooked. The war correspondents were asked by sent by the wireless telegraph at the moment of capture, and the reply was that if no more was heard from the Haimun in three hours, the Captain of H.M.S. Leviathan, our guardship for the nonce, was to be informed of the fact. This information, no doubt, assisted the Russian officers to a decision, and with a laugh they left the Haimun.

A touch of the comic element was at 11 a.m. furnished by the re-appearance of the Japanese interpreter, when the Russians had gone. He had evidently experienced considerable agitation, and it is not surprising that important points in his toilet had been overlooked.

The Bayan steamed to within a few hundred feet of the Press-boat, and spectators on the latter could form a fairly accurate idea as to the amount of damage the Russian cruiser had received so far during Japanese attacks on Port Arthur. One funnel was much the worse for wear. THE Steamship A hig gun seemed to have been dismounted, and slong the whole length of the warship Captain W. P. LATE TELEGRAMS.

Baron von Rosen Interviewed. London, March 18.-A French newspaper correspondent interviewed, at Port Said, Baron von Rosen, late Russian Minister at Tokio, who is on his way to St. Petersburg. The correspondent elicited from the diplomatist a statement to the effect that Russia's reply to the last Japanese Note, though dated February 5th, was not deli vered at Tokio till the 8th, it having been intercepted by the Japanese. Admiral Alexeieff's telegram, warning the commander of the Varyag of the rupture of diplomatic relations, was, said Beron Rosen, also intercepted, a circumstance which, he declared, converted the Chemulpho incident into a regular slaughter in ambuscade.

Baron von Rosen is convinced that the Japanese fleet sailed for Port Arthur long before the rupture was announced. Other sources confirm the statement that Admiral Togo sailed on the morning of Fobruary 6th.

Baron von Rosen asserts that Japan declared war in order to avert a Chauvinist Indian Tea Prospects.
